THE 1931 Mirabilia, in the art theme, is paying tribute to the city of HUNTINGTON on its sixtieth anniversary for all that it has done and is ever doing to advance the cause of Marshall College. Since the founding and incorporating of the city in 1871 as a railroad center, Huntington has ever boasted of the fact that Marshall College is located within her city limits and has availed herself of every opportunity to promote the interests of the institution. The Mirabilia, in turn, is taking this privilege of telling Huntington that Marshall, too, is proud of her location and of her enthusiastic Huntington backers.

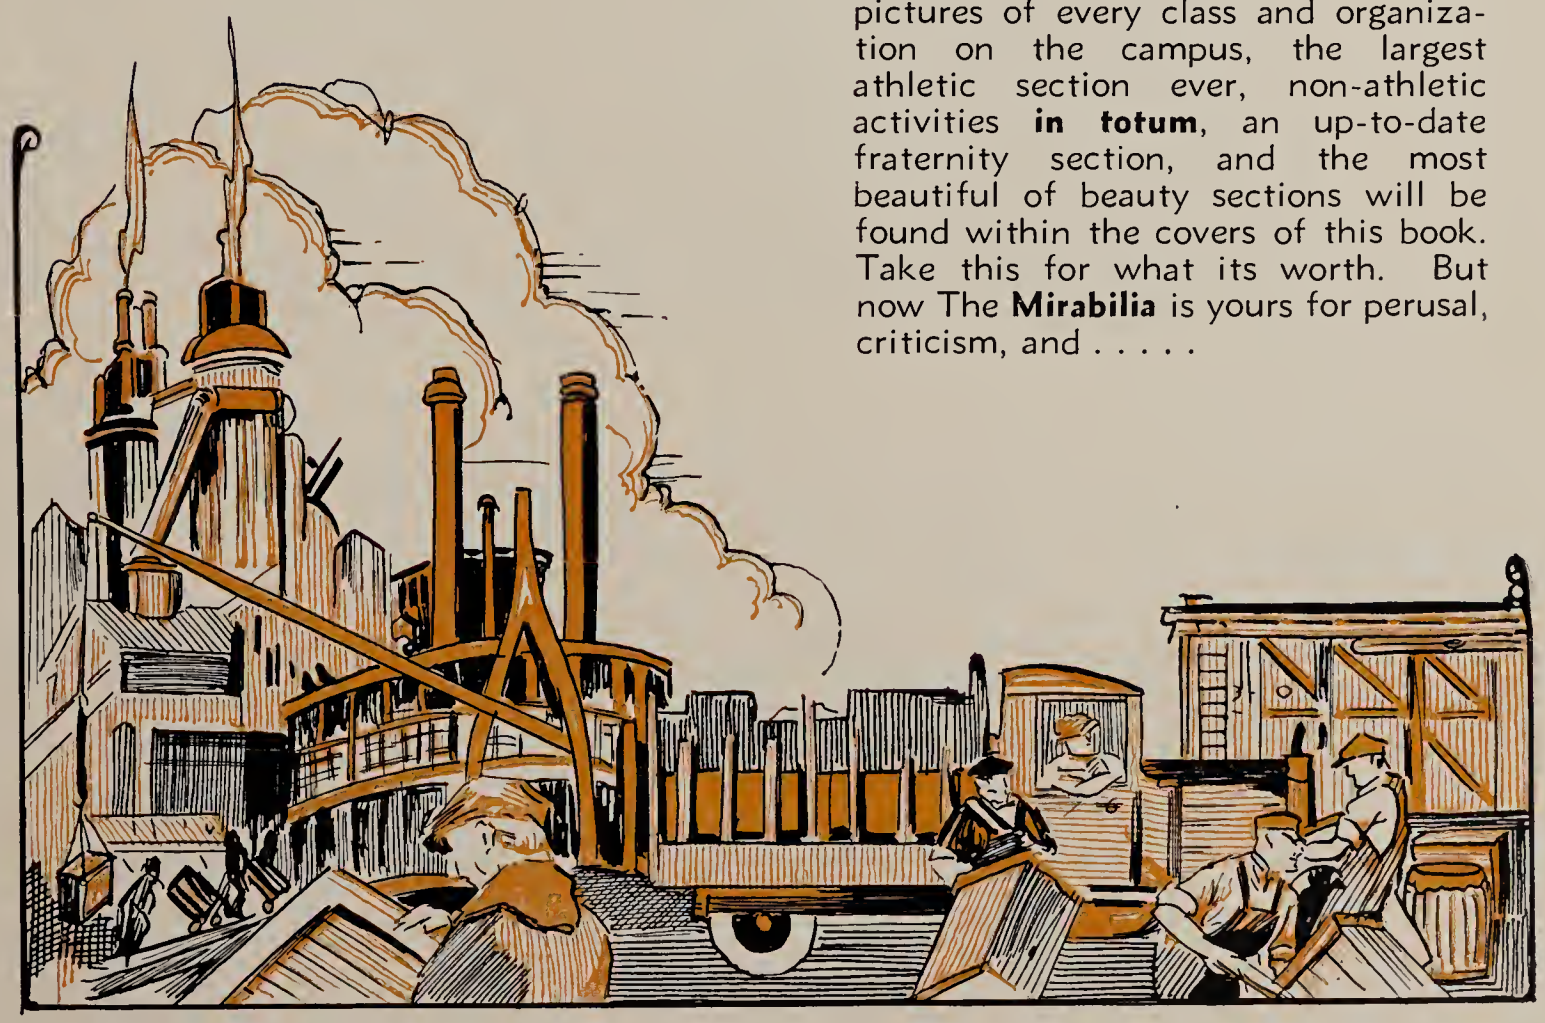
THE Mirabilia of 1931, through the cooperation of local business men, is giving to her patrons the largest and most complete annual that has ever been published at Marshall College. Art work typical of the community, pictures of every class and organization on the campus, the largest athletic section ever, non-athletic activities in totum, an up-to-date fraternity section, and the most beautiful of beauty sections will be found within the covers of this book. Take this for what its worth. But now The Mirabilia is yours for perusal, criticism, and . . . . .



Herbert Fitzpatrick

Inasmuch as the 1931 Mirabilia is paying tribute to Huntington as the Industrial and Commercial center, no more suitable individual than Herbert Fitzpatrick could be found to whom to dedicate the publication for Mr. Fitzpatrick is the most outstanding local person connected with the railroad interests for which Huntington is justly noted.

Mr. Fitzpatrick was graduated from Washington and Lee University with both an A. B. and LL. B. degree. In 1927 the same school conferred upon him the LL. D. degree. Marshall College conferred a similar degree last June upon Mr. Fitzpatrick. While in college he became affiliated with the Phi Delta Theta, Theta Nu Epsilon, and the Phi Beta Kappa fraternities.

In 1896 he was admitted to the West Virginia bar and began practicing law here in Huntington. He became assistant prosecuting attorney of Huntington in 1904 and in 1906 was city solicitor. Practicing law in Huntington as a member of the law firm of Fitzpatrick, Brown and Davis, Mr. Fitzpatrick forged ahead until today he numbers among his many business connections, chief counsel for the Van Swearingen rail interests, vice-president of the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad, vice-president and general counsel for the Pere Marquette rail system, and director of the two latter companies.

Mr. Fitzpatrick is also connected with other rail interests which include: vice-president, law and corporate relations, Missouri Pacific Lines; vice-president, law and corporate relations, International-Great Northern R. R. Co.; vice-president, law and corporate relations, the Texas Pacific Railway Co.

He is a member of the American Bar Association, the West Virginia Bar Association, the Cabell County Bar Association, and the Capitol Commission. In Huntington he is a director of the First Huntington National Bank, a member of the Guyandotte Club, the Guyan Country Club, and the B. P. O. E. Lodge No. 313. He is also a member of the Country Club of Virginia; Westmoreland Country Club and Commonwealth Club in Richmond, Va.; Leash Club, New York City; and Edgewood Country Club, Charleston, West Virginia.

President's Valedictory

Writing this annual Mirabilia greeting arouses in me a peculiar sensation. It tempts me to go off into a round of praise for the earnest work and notable accomplishments of the faithful band of young men and women who are soon to receive their diplomas from this institution. It tempts me to recall to us all the happy associations of our years together, but it also reminds me that I am speaking a farewell. It contrasts a closed past with an opening future. Whether the vision is forward or backward, it brings a mingled feeling of rejoicing and regret. As i look back over the four years of your life at Marshall, I can see both smiles and tears. I see both as I look into the years ahead. The happy phase of it is that with the smiles there has always been sunshine, and above the tears a rainbow of hope and good cheer. Such experiences grow golden friendships. They reveal character and characteristics. They work a selective process by which only the worthy prevail. So, of the class of 1931, I think the entire faculty would join me in saying as Wordsworth said:

"Blessings be with them and eternal praise,
Who gave us nobler loves and nobler cares."

Wherever you may stray or whatever your fortunes may be, just carry Marshall in your hearts as Marshall will always enshrine you in hers.

ACTIVITIES

STUDENT GOVERNMENT

Student Government at Marshall College enjoyed a happy year of success and accomplishment for 1930-31. Many things were done—some of which had failed to materialize in past years. The students, I believe, expressed greater interest, were more loyal to the cause and the college, and at the same time stood firmly for their rights and privileges.

CHARLES W. CALDWELL

The year began with the holding of a "Freshman Week" program, sponsored by the student council, the deans of the colleges, and the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. This was the first "Freshman Week" ever conducted as a means to aid matriculating boys and girls. May the policy be continued with greater effect in the future.

Instead of discussing each of the accomplishments of the present administration, I shall merely list them as follows:

1. The work of the student council in cooperating with the Athletic Department in sponsoring the first "Dads' Day" program in the history of Marshall College on November 1, with the Thundering Herd playing Wittenburg at Fairfield stadium.

2. Again this year the council as well as the entire student body carried out their share of the Home Coming activities on Thanksgiving. A new loving cup was established for the best float in the annual parade.

3. An old issue of several years standing was finally settled when the faculty in their first meeting in December granted to the student body three one o'clock dances for a school year. This decision was won only after the council and campus organizations had refused to give up the fight. As part of the argument the council conducted a survey of 300 colleges and universities in the United States.

4. The council for the first time was represented in the person of the Student President and Mr. Edward Hutson to the conference of the National Student Federation of America held at Atlanta Georgia, during the Christmas holidays.

5. A new student body constitution was adopted, which new code gave the student council more power and corrected several weaknesses of the old constitution, especially the election machinery. The special constitutional committee was composed of the following: Chas. W. Caldwell, chairman; Franklin Burdett, secretary; Ted Martufi, Mary Brockman, Sam Metzger, and Professors Claude Crumb, H. G. Toole, Catherine Wehler, John Stender and John McClister.

6. When it was discovered that the administration had allowed only one day for Easter vacation, the student body circulated petitions demanding a new day. As a result an extra day was granted by the college council but only after a consistant fight. The students who deserve credit for this accomplishment are: Helen Rector, Eleanor Smith, Elizabeth Johnson, Dorothy Johnson, Virginia Round, Opal Williams, Dorothy Poff and Judson Bailey.

7. The council carried on its other functions with success from every viewpoint. A little trouble arose over freshman rules, but I am sure that will not happen next year. The regular student council dances, including the Beauty Ball, were put over in great style. Several thuses for football were conducted by the council. Special keys for all members of the council were designed and presented for the first time this year.

In addition to the factors which I may point accomplished by the student council and the student body, there were three regular administrative committees on which students served with credit to themselves and the college. These Committees were:

Social Activities Committee: Mary Shawver and Ralph Mullens, student representatives.

Assembly Committee: Mary Brockman, Malcolm Hannan (part of the year), Harper Grimm, Hite Wilson (one semester).

Athletic Board: Morris C. Shawkey and Russell Hicks, student representatives.

With this as a review of student government for the year, I am glad to say as I have said before that this year will always remain with me as one of the greatest and most loved of my whole life. I thank the council members and every student for cooperation, especially do I mention Tom Stark, Hatfield Brubeck, Helen Rector and Helen Kay of the student council. My only suggestion is that students show more interest between elections, that those placed in responsible positions think more of the needs of the students, and that student governing bodies always consider seriously the advise of the president of the college and the old men of the class rooms.

Respectfully,

CHAS. W. CALDWELL, Student President.

THE MIRABILIA

We believe the 1931 Mirabilia to be the most complete and representative yearbook that has yet been published at Marshall College. The book this year did not follow so closely the ones that have been previously edited but adopted quite a few new policies including a new arrangement of the book and a consistent art theme throughout built around the industrial and commercial life of Huntington and the vicinity.

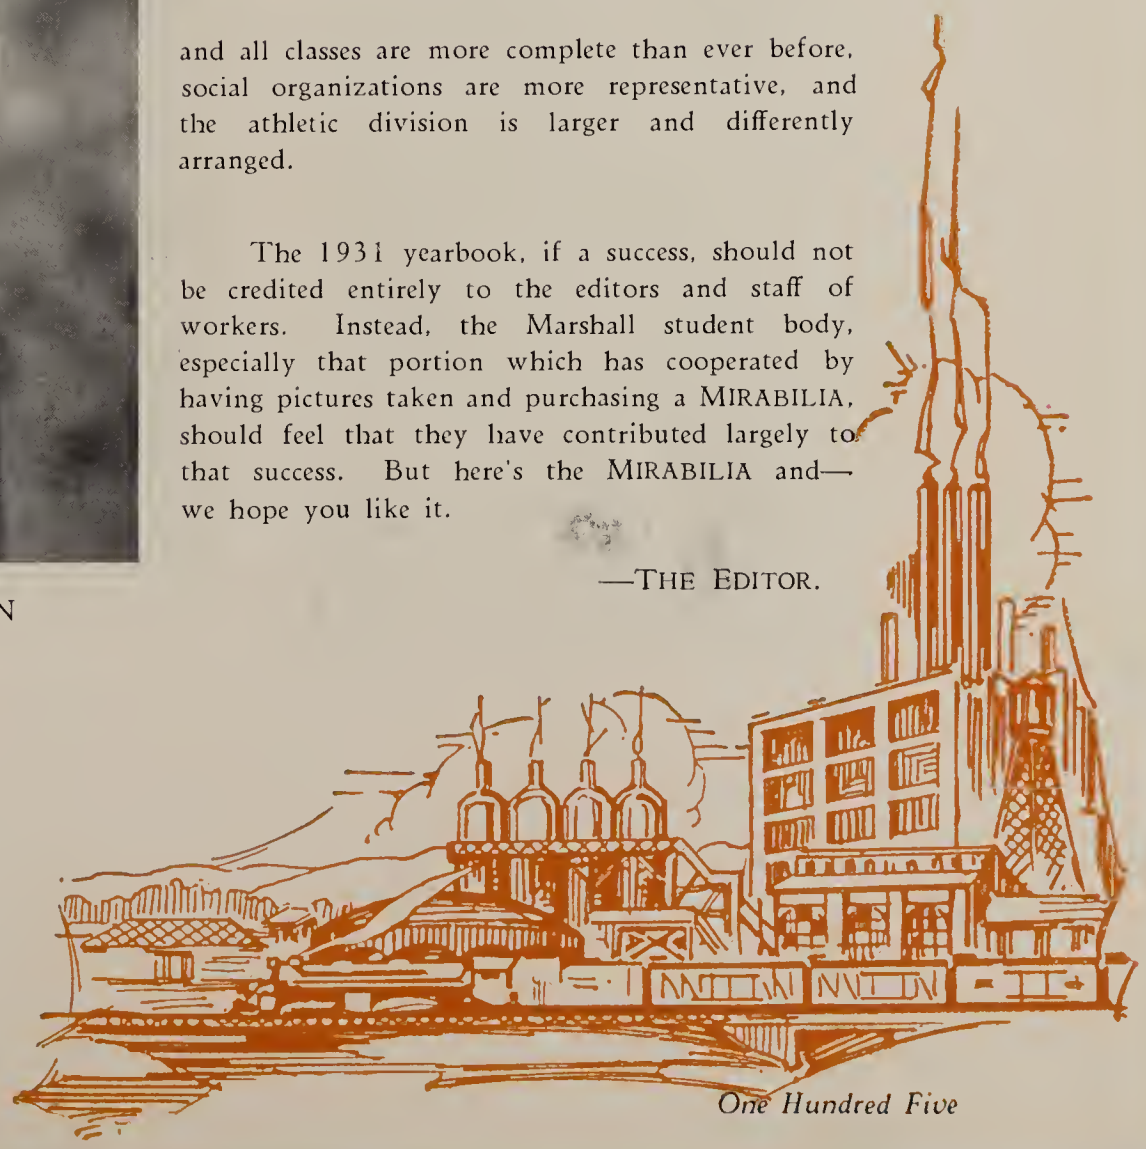
Contrary to all precedents the Freshman class is represented with individual photographs this year instead of the usual group, fraternities and sororities are all listed under fraternities as is done in the larger colleges and universities, the faculty and all classes are more complete than ever before, social organizations are more representative, and the athletic division is larger and differently arranged.

A. OTIS RANSON

EDWARD P. HUTSON

The 1931 yearbook, if a success, should not be credited entirely to the editors and staff of workers. Instead, the Marshall student body, especially that portion which has cooperated by having pictures taken and purchasing a MIRABILIA, should feel that they have contributed largely to that success. But here's the MIRABILIA and—we hope you like it.

—THE EDITOR.



THE MIRABILIA STAFF

There are quite a few things that an editor could say when writing about his staff, things that would be of particular interest only to that staff and might not sound too nice to the general public. Such things shall be left unsaid.

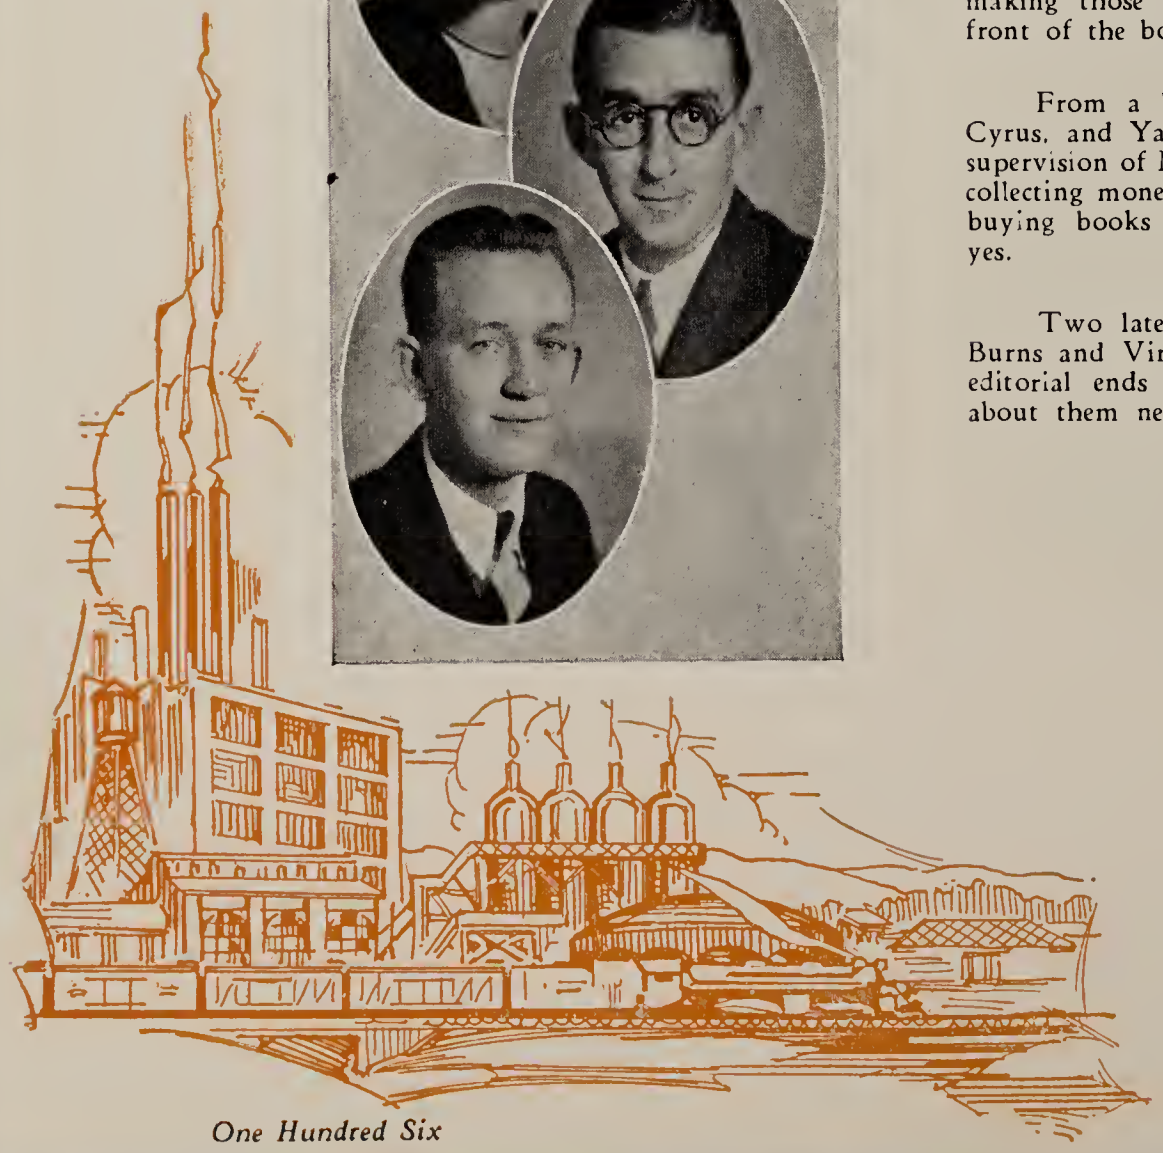
Taking everything into consideration, the individuals you see to the immediate left, plus a few others whom we shall mention, are not as bad as they might seem at the first glance. They cooperated to a great extent in giving you what you now are reading and we wish to give them our heart-felt thanks (sorry we can't make it a financial remuneration).

Messrs Walls, Starkey, and Hicks weren't at all backward about wanting things to do in the editorial field—Walls and Starkey helping out in everything generally and Brother Hicks furnishing the sport dope. Then Edith Francis, being an artist and enjoying her work, spene several enjoyable afternoons and evenings making those pretty pictures you saw in the front of the book.

From a business point of view Peoples, Cyrus, and Yarbrough held the sack under the supervision of Mr. Hutson. Getting advertising, collecting money, and inveigling individuals into buying books must have been enjoyable—oh, yes.

Two late comers to the staff were Max Burns and Virgil Tippett on the business and editorial ends respectively. You'll hear more about them next year—they're only Freshmen.

—THE EDITOR.



THE PARTHENON

When the Editor of one publication sits down to write about the heads of another publication, the ordinary and perhaps logical thing to do would be to wax sarcastic, tell what's wrong with the paper in discussion, and finally end up by offering suggestions and radical changes. However there are more pertinent methods of meeting the exigencies of the situation; it is possible to say nice things, you know, even about editors.

On this page you will see two gentlemen, figuratively speaking, who claim—and can offer evidence if necessary—to know how to run a college newspaper. The gentlemen in the upper left-hand corner is The Editor; below you will recognize The Business Manager. Quite early in the year The Business Manager was The Editor; but due to some unknown and unforseen incident, he resigned in favor of Mr. Anderson to assume the responsibilities of managing the paper. Then up stepped Mr. Anderson and has been doing things ever since as they should be done—so he says.

EUGENE HILL BROWN

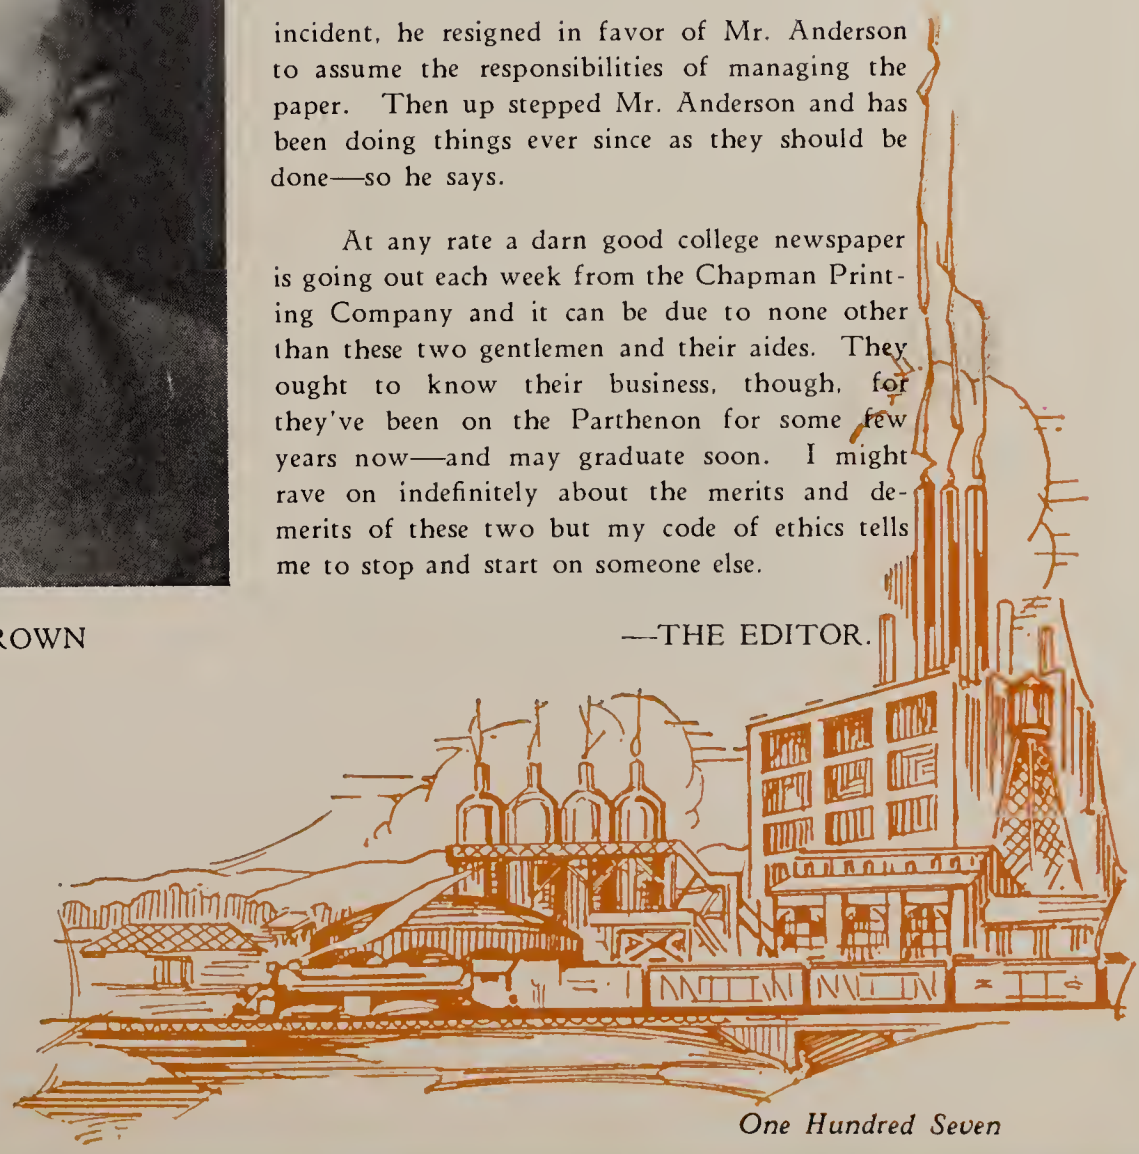
At any rate a darn good college newspaper is going out each week from the Chapman Printing Company and it can be due to none other than these two gentlemen and their aides. They ought to know their business, though, for they've been on the Parthenon for some few years now—and may graduate soon. I might rave on indefinitely about the merits and demerits of these two but my code of ethics tells me to stop and start on someone else.

—THE EDITOR.



THE PARTHENON STAFF

If it is difficult for the editor of a publication to write about the merits and demerits of his own staff, you can imagine how I feel when writing about the members of the staff of another publication. It may be difficult but we shall attempt to stick to the truth a little more than we did in our discussion of the Mirabilia staff.

On numerous occasions I have been in the Parthenon office on the memorable night before the paper came off the press and been a careful observer of what was going on and who was doing it. And, much as I hate to admit it, I must confess that the Parthenon editors have it on me when it comes to picking a staff that will deliver the goods. On these aforementioned occasions I was always able to find three or four individuals pecking away at typewriters and at the present time I am able to hear only one—my own.

Mr. Anderson had a capable crew as his aides: Robert Jamison, Managing Editor; Wallace Myers, News Editor; Harry Drinner and Bill Garrett, Sports Editors; Myra Thomas, Society Editor; Janet Miller, Feature Editor; Ruth Whisler, Women's Editor; and Barney Cubbedge, Associate News Editor. A capable staff and may they all get their reward in heaven or wherever they go.

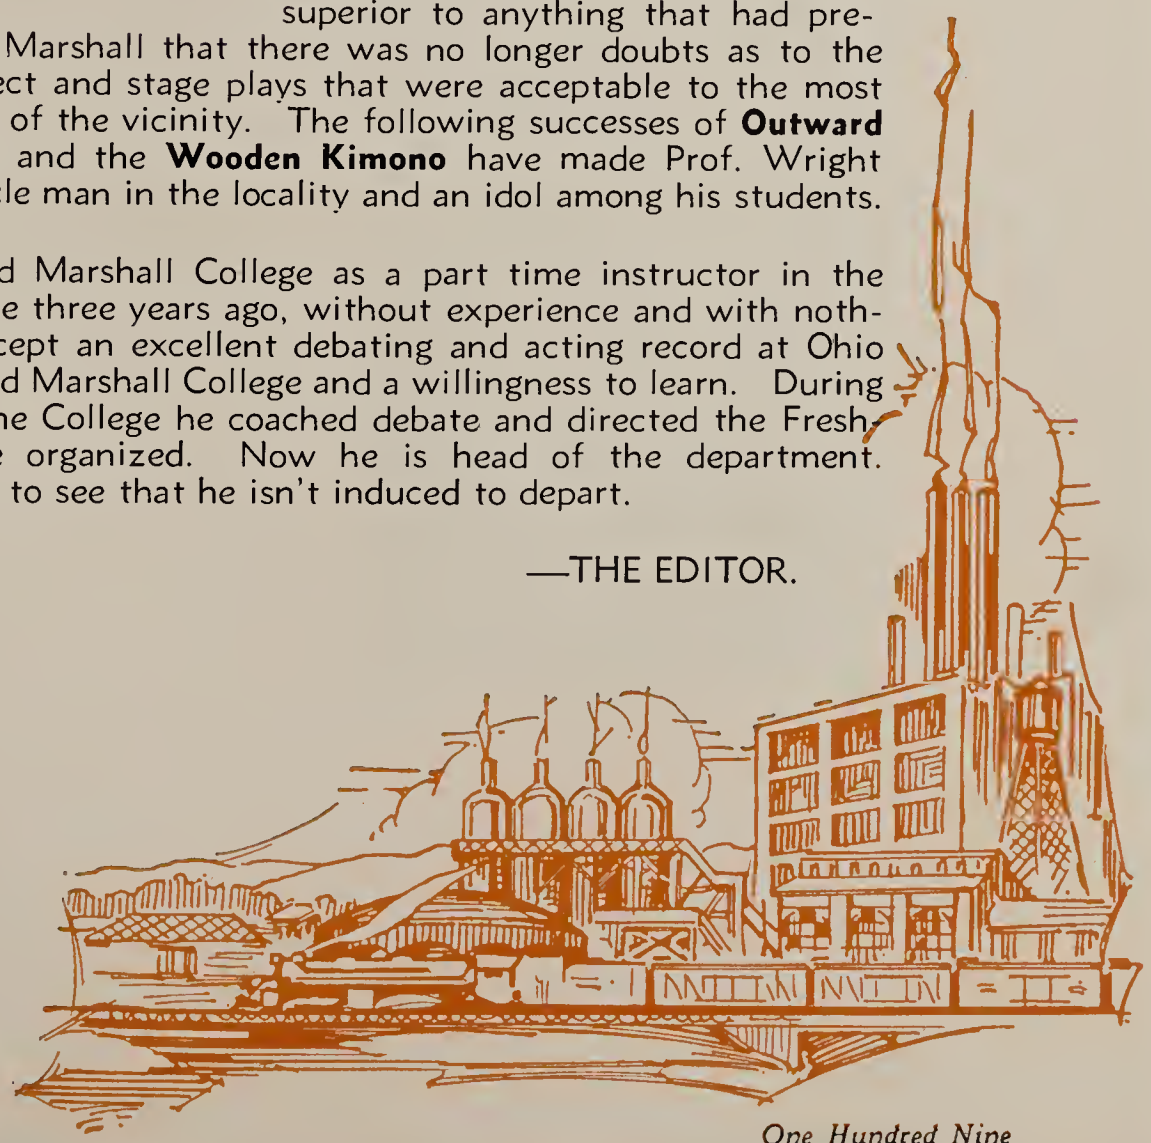
G. HARRY WRIGHT

When Prof. E. Turner Stump handed in his resignation last Summer, various individuals wondered what was going to happen to the College Theatre, who would direct the dramatic productions, and take general charge of the Green Room and what goes with it. Speculations were numerous but the administration eventually decided upon Stump's right hand man—G. Harry Wright.

Professor Wright stepped into the College Theatre at a time when no one was particularly interested in the organization or what it was doing, and especially were the students and townspeople dubious as to his ability to carry on the director's duties. Working under the handicap of a tremendous financial obligation, Wright startled everyone with the presentation of his first big play, Franz Molnar's The Swan. The work in this was so superior to anything that had previously been staged at Marshall that there was no longer doubts as to the director's ability to select and stage plays that were acceptable to the most intense dramatic critics of the vicinity. The following successes of Outward Bound, Enter Madame, and the Wooden Kimono have made Prof. Wright little more than a miracle man in the locality and an idol among his students.

Mr. Wright entered Marshall College as a part time instructor in the speech department some three years ago, without experience and with nothing to back him up except an excellent debating and acting record at Ohio Wesleyan University and Marshall College and a willingness to learn. During his first two years at the College he coached debate and directed the Freshman Players which he organized. Now he is head of the department. Marshall would do well to see that he isn't induced to depart.

—THE EDITOR.



THE THEATRE STAFF

The usual success of the College Theatre in its productions of the past year must be attributed largely to the work of The Staff, early selected and trained by the Director. These individuals, coming from various other departments in the college, have toiled untiringly for the success of the Theatre in everything that it has undertaken.

Practically every phase of play production had some individual placed in charge and trained to see that that one particular thing was done. On the business end there was Elizabeth McDowell in charge. Frances Conner and Frances Shor garnered properties. Mary Alice Belanger saw that costumes were secured. Zariffe Cassis and Edith Francis painted posters and took care of the advertising end. Mrs. G. Harry Wright and Zariffe Cassis were the make-up artists. Mrs. Gertrude Stoakes knows her sound effects. Milton Tinsley and Edith Francis were scenic designers and painters. Charles Brown, Tom Thornburg, and Otis Ranson saw that the scenery and lights were always up and in working order.

And so it takes quite a few individuals to stage a show even when they all work and work hard. If you don't believe it, just drop around sometime just before a big show and see what is going on and I don't think we'll have any argueing over the matter.

—THE EDITOR.

ORATORY

For the second time a Marshall College speaker succeeded in out orating the best from other West Virginia colleges in the annual oratorical contest. The wind-jamming artist this year happened to be none other than our old friend and debate colleague, the Reverend Stanley A. Gould, who spoke on The Open Road. Mr. Gould seemingly had very little difficulty in making himself master of the situation, as it were, and received first place by a considerable percentage over his nearest rival, the representative from West Virginia Wesleyan College.

As I said before this is the second consecutive time that Marshall has out-winded the other colleges. Last year at Fairmont Mr. Tim Hollandsworth won the contest by a unanimous decision of the judges after delivering his oration on Present Opportunity. And, of course, not wanting to be outdone by a student who had no particular claim to public speaking fame, the Rev. Mr. Gould felt himself almost obligated to uphold his own reputation by a repetition of Mr. Hollandsworth's action—very considerate of Mr. Gould to say the least.

There is no doubt but what the judges rendered a just decision in awarding the contest to Mr. Gould as most Marshallites, at least, will admit. His speaking ability from the standpoint of delivery is without flaw . . . at least serious ones. His speech was well organized and quite suitable for a college oration from the standpoint of contents. In brief what he said is this: All progress from the beginning of time has been made by a few brave souls who dared to face the obstacles of the unknown, the untried in order that something new might be given to the world. It is the duty of the youth of today to face the unknown unflinchingly and give to the world that something new to keep the world in progression.

DEBATE

Although the Marshall debaters did not win any state championship or any other championship this season, their year cannot be said to be unsuccessful. They met quite a few of their traditional rivals and several other teams besides and ended the season by winning about half their contests—not a bad percentage considering the fact that only three of last year's squad was in school this season and the coaching position fell to the new member of the speech faculty.

Marshall was eliminated in the initial debate for the state championship by Concord College in a dual debate. The contest was unusually close, the Marshall affirmative winning and the negative losing. The unfortunate part about the whole situation, however, was that the negative lost by a larger percentage than the affirmative won. And, so, Marshall is not the state's best when it comes to argueing.

The Marshall debaters include Stanley A. Gould and A. Otis Ranson on the affirmative; Charles W. Caldwell and Rosanna Blake on the negative; and Frances Shor and Rosanna Blake on the girl's team. Prof. D: C. Rardin was coach of debate and oratory.

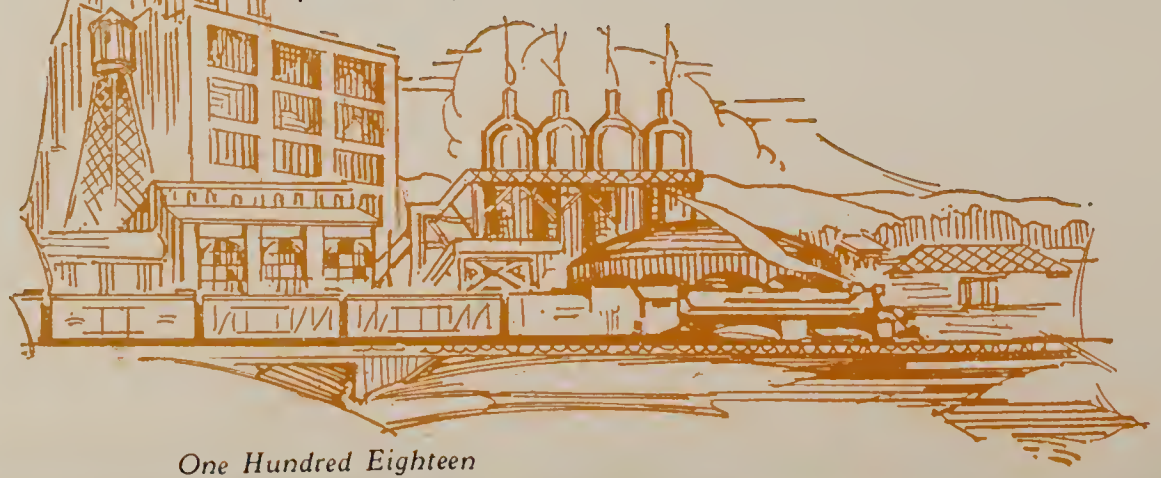
The Chamber of Commerce of 1930-31 has had a very successful year. Early in the fall season, the members conducted a survey for the Rotary Club on the unemployment situation in Huntington.

At our meetings we have enjoyed listening to various speakers who are outstanding business and professional men of the city.

The regular annual banquet, given at the Hotel Prichard, was a very delightful affair. In numbers and interest it easily outdistanced those of previous years.



CLASSICAL ASSOCIATION

The Marshall College Classical Association is an organization composed of students who have had two complete years of high school Latin or who have enrolled in the Greek or Latin departments at Marshall. The club was first organized in 1910, and since then it has been of great benefit to all those included in its membership. Under the administration of Miss Juanita Ramsey, the Association has enjoyed an unusually successful year. The sponsors, Miss Lucy Prichard and Miss Lucy Whitsel, have given her splendid co-operation.

The Y. M. C. A. this year underwent a complete reorganization in policy and assumed the place on the Marshall campus that a young men's organization should hold. Under the leadership of President Martufi, Dean John L. Stender, and Student President Charles W. Caldwell, a new membership drive was effected which enrolled a large percentage of the male members of the student body. The entire basement of the new James E. THE COLLEGE THEATRE

Under the directorship of Prof. G. Harry Wright, new head of the Speech Department, the College Theatre this year was completely reorganized and started to operate, for the first time, on a sound financial basis. Due to the fact that there was a large deficit at the beginning of the year, special effort was made to attract larger crowds to the major performances which resulted in a larger and more appreciative audience than has ever witnessed College Theatre productions. The organization, one might say, this year became for certainty a permanent organization on the Marshall campus.

Starting the year off with Franz Molnar's The Swan, the Theatre under Mr. Wright was given credit for knowing how to select plays that were acceptable to the public in contents, dramatic appeal, and staging. In this play many new stars were discovered who later became rather noted on the campus for their acting ability. Among these are Dorothy Lee O'Brien, Angelo Eagon, Ruth Schlegel, and Witcher McMillen. All except Eagon are Freshmen who, if they remain at Marshall, shall beyond doubt be heard of much in the next few years on the Marshall stage.

The next and perhaps greatest show yet presented by the Theatre group was Outward Bound. Those acquainted with the play will realize that a great play was given regardless of the way that it was staged; and, individuals who have seen the play on previous occasions, maintain that the Marshall presentation from every standpoint was the best that they had ever witnessed.

Third on the program was Enter Madame, a well-written and humorous comedy centering around a tempermental opera singer and her business-man husband who had had enough of the opera and wanted to retire and settle down for life. The woman had her way—as she usually does—and so the world moves on.

The fourth and final production of the College Theatre was, according to many individuals, the best of the year due to the fact that it was a mystery which has few equals when it comes to giving an audience its money's worth of thrills---The Wooden Kimono. This show, centering around a deserted tavern in which three people had been mysteriously killed and in which resided a woman and her crazy husband who had built a coffin for his ghost and the attempts at the solution of the mystery, was greeted with screams, yells, and howls of laughter by an auditorium full of people. It was a fitting climax for a successful year. You don't believe it? You know, I don't even care.

ATHLETICS

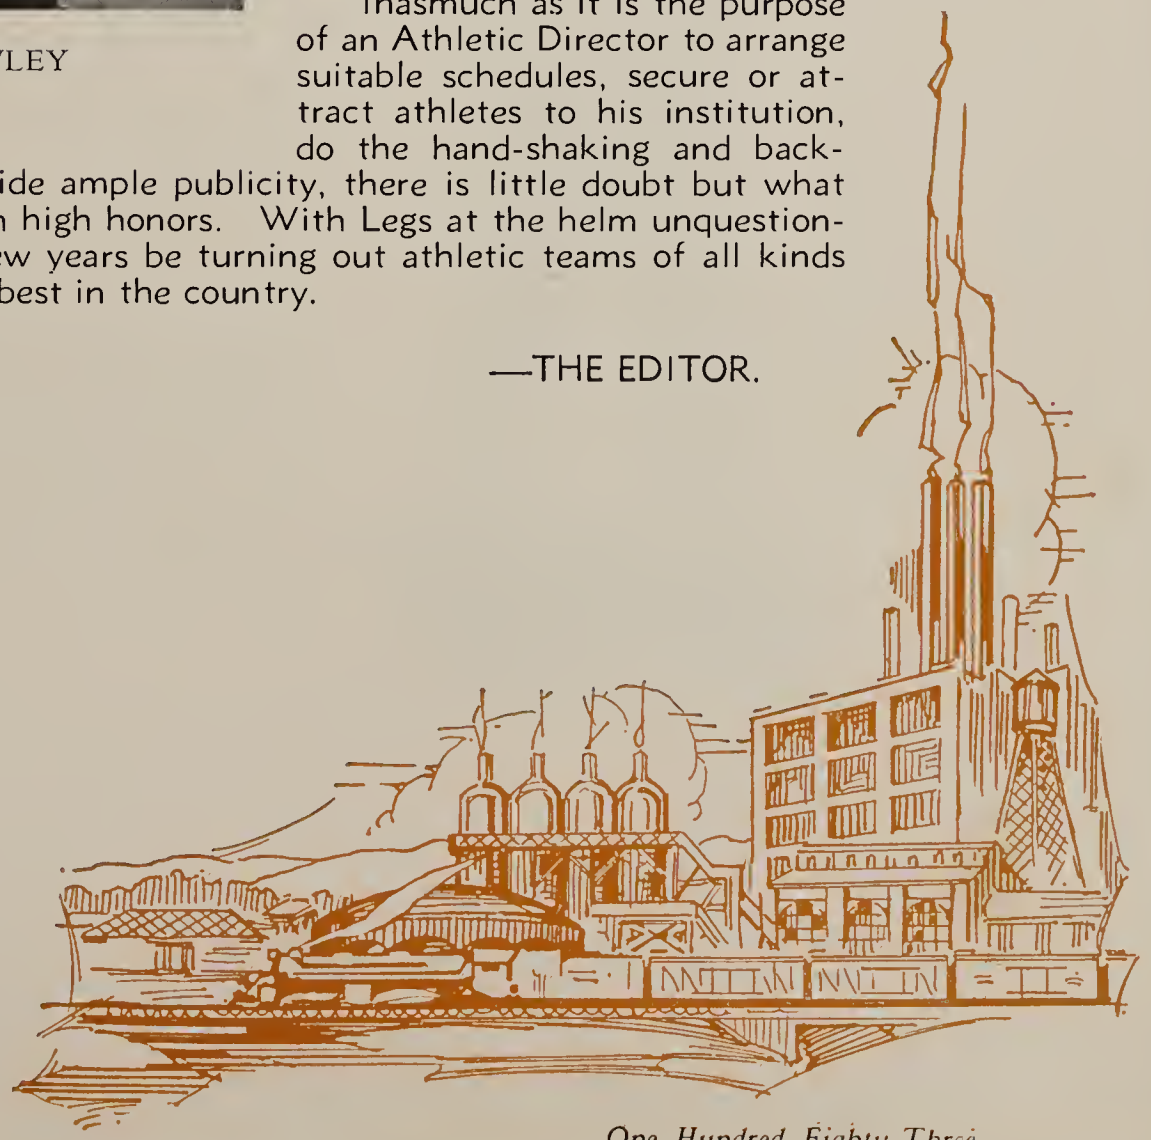
ROY M. HAWLEY

"Legs" Hawley has now been at Marshall for several years; he is likely to be here several years hence. There is no reason why he should not be for he has literally been "delivering the goods."

When Mr. Hawley came to Marshall, this institution was known only in a very limited locality—Southern West Virginia. She was particularly noted for her famous contests with the old rival, Morris - Harvey College. Now Marshall has been heard of over a more considerable district having played Ohio Wesleyan University, John Carroll, West Virginia Wesleyan, Ohio State, Penn State, Notre Dame, West Virginia University, Washington and Lee, and many other larger colleges and universities.

Inasmuch as it is the purpose of an Athletic Director to arrange suitable schedules, secure or attract athletes to his institution, do the hand-shaking and back-slapping stunts, and provide ample publicity, there is little doubt but what Mr. Hawley qualifies with high honors. With Legs at the helm unquestionably Marshall will in a few years be turning out athletic teams of all kinds that will rank among the best in the country.

—THE EDITOR.



JOHN MAULBETSCH

"Maulley" has served his second and last year as Head Football and Track Coach at Marshall having resigned about the middle of the past year after his failure to produce a "winning" football team. Johnny had tough luck during his short stay at Marshall; with only mediocre material, and the best of it injured about half the time, he was pitted against some of the best teams in the East and expected to beat them. Even football coaches are not invincible. However, there is no doubt about Maulbetsch's being a great coach as well as a great athlete; he'll be heard from yet. Just wait and see.

—THE EDITOR.

Tom Dandelet came to Marshall in 1930 from Ceredo-Kenova High School where he had made an unprecedented name for himself in coaching all sports by turning out the best teams in the state in high school circles. As assistant coach at Marshall he did such exceptional work that when Head Coach Maulbetsch resigned, Athletic Director Hawley immediately appointed Mr. Dandelet as Head Football Coach for 1931. "Dan" is expected to do big things at Marshall next year.

—THE EDITOR.

THOMAS C. DANDELET

"Jimmy" acted the role of trainer for the 1930 "Thundering Herd" and did an exceptionally good job of it. Jimmy had more injuries to deal with than any other trainer of recent years at Marshall, but with his exceptional ability and "famous" remedies he managed to keep the boys going most of the time.

—HICKS.

Stuart is assistant football coach, basketball coach and baseball coach but he missed his calling. John should be a member of the State Board of Motion Picture Censorship or something like that as he probably knows more about moving pictures than he does athletics. But aside from his good looks, "onion" head Stuart is a mediocre baseball player.

—HICKS.

(Editors Note: Hicks is evidently sore at Coach Stuart for a bawling out or something like that. Johnny, as everyone knows, is West Virginia's greatest baseball coach and one of its best players in the Middle Atlantic League. Johnny has turned out state championship teams galore—but Hicks must have his fun.)

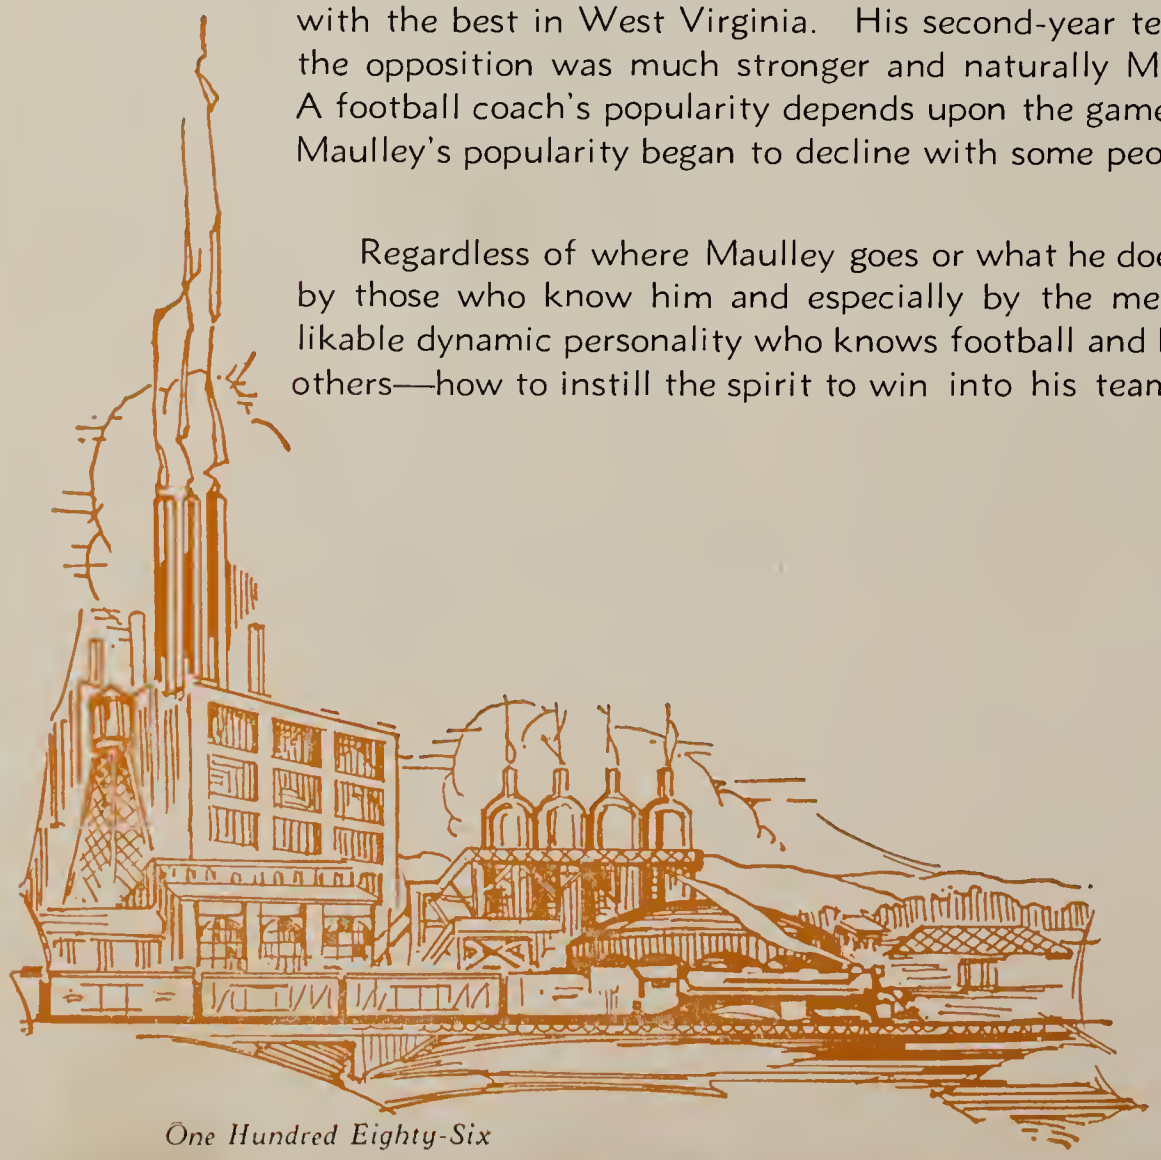
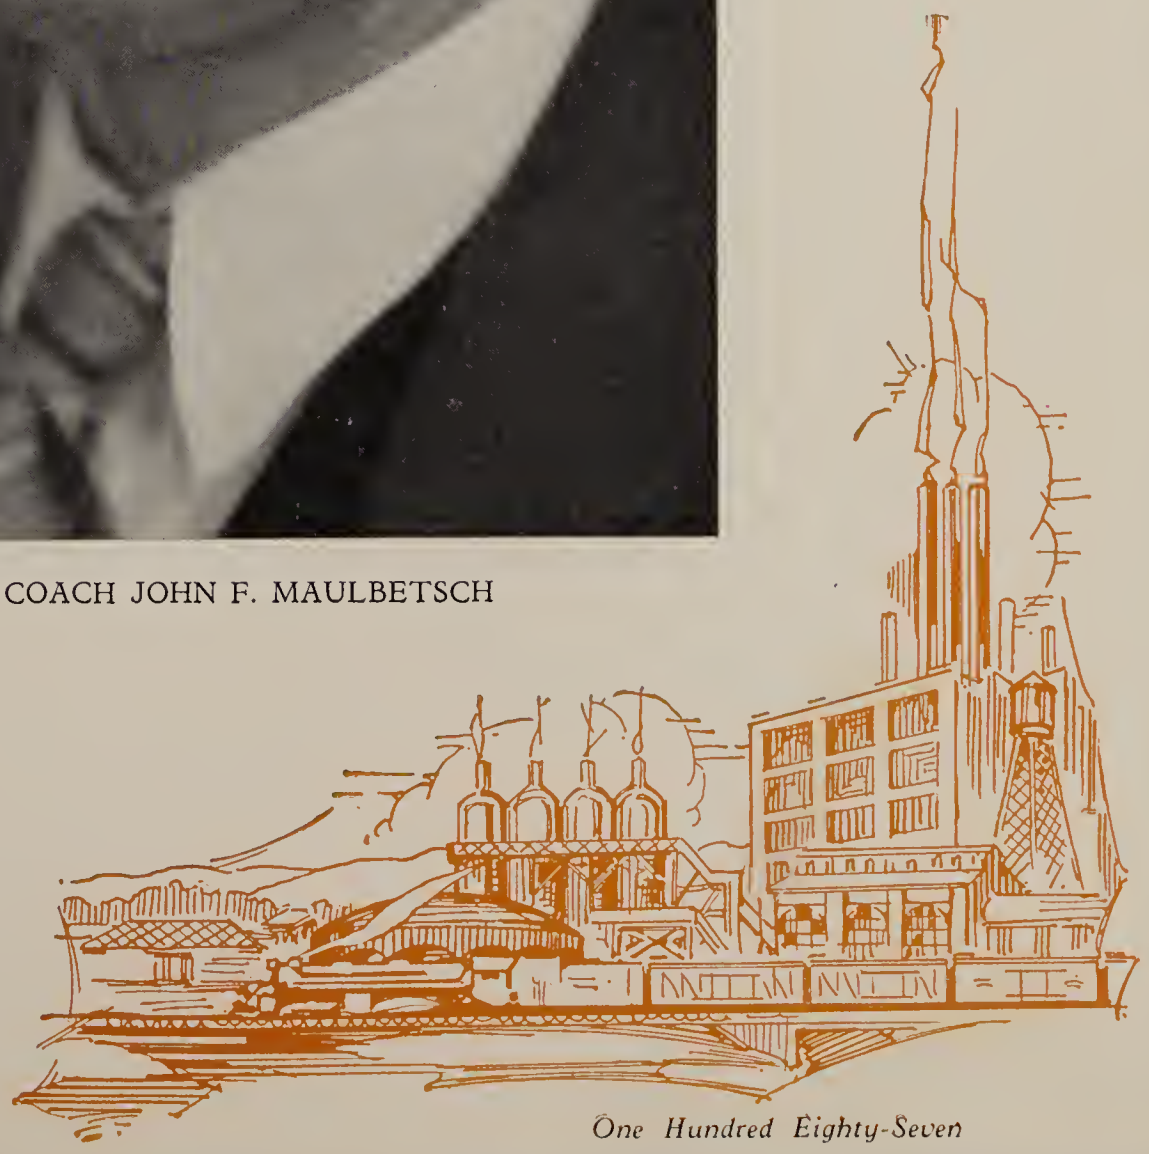
John F. Maulbetsch, serving as head football coach for the second year, gave Marshall another rather successful year on the gridiron. "Maully" came to Marshall two years ago from Oklahoma A. and M. where he had served for eight years as head football, basketball, and baseball coach. He came to Marshall with an excellent reputation and high recommendations as a coach.

Maulbetsch succeeded Coach Trusty Tallman who resigned at Marshall to accept the position of Freshman Football Coach at West Virginia University. Tallman during his stay at Marshall had built up quite a reputation for himself as a coach and was well liked by the townspeople. When Maulbetsch succeeded to the position, he soon became popular with his players and fans as well, and, during the first year turned out a team that compared favorably with the best in West Virginia. His second-year team was just as good but the opposition was much stronger and naturally Marshall lost more games. A football coach's popularity depends upon the games won and lost and so—Maulley's popularity began to decline with some people.

Regardless of where Maulley goes or what he does he will be remembered by those who know him and especially by the members of the team as a likable dynamic personality who knows football and knows how to teach it to others—how to instill the spirit to win into his team if winning is possible.



HEAD COACH JOHN F. MAULBETSCH



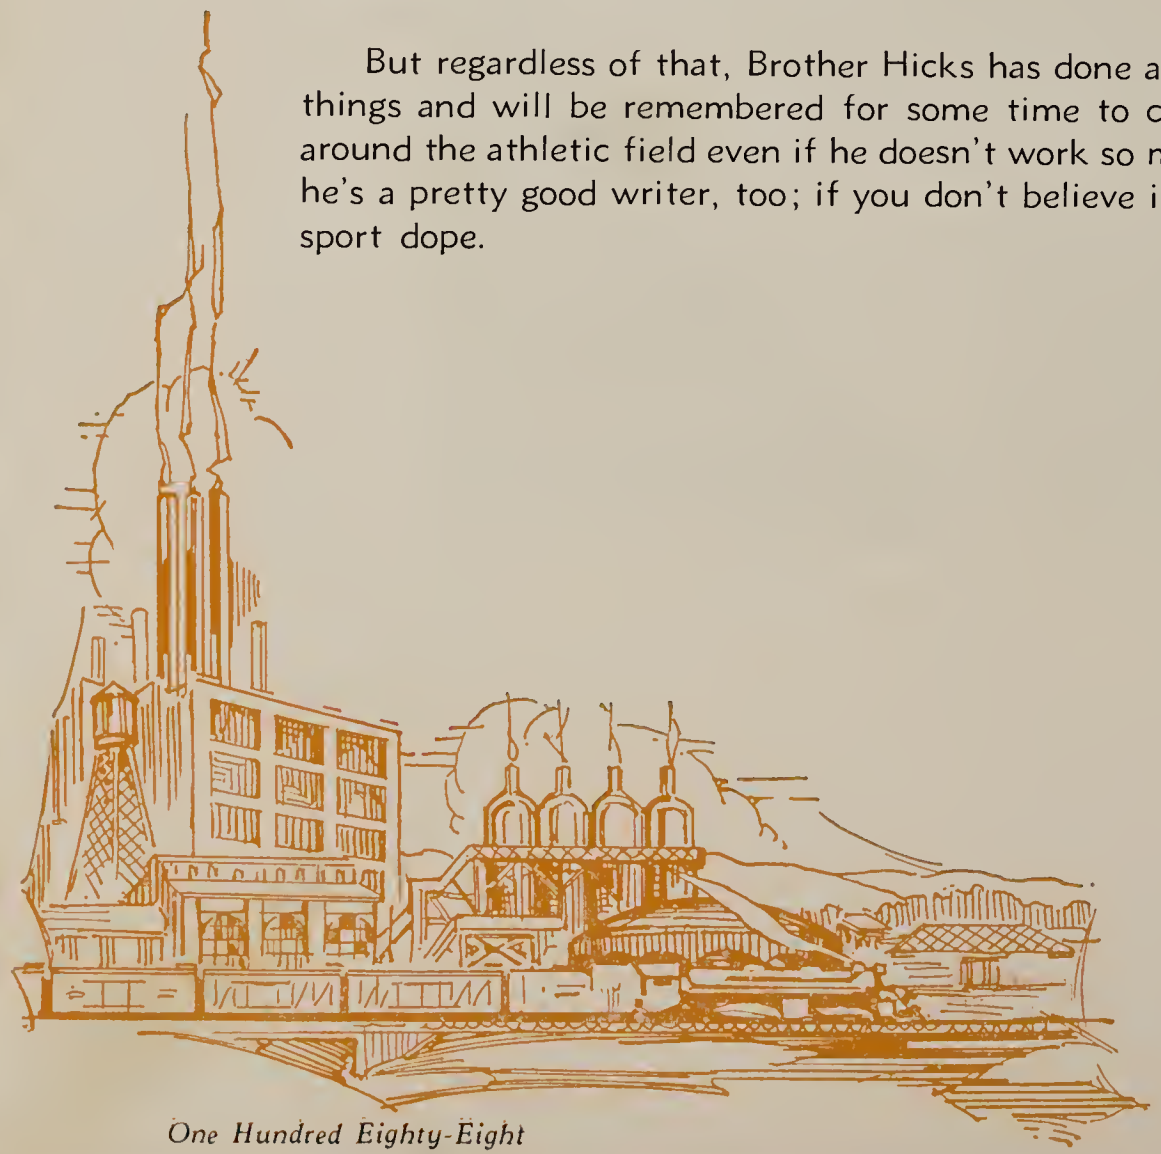
THE FAMOUS HICKS

We should feel bad the rest of our life if we did not take a few moments off and peck out a line or two about our sports editor who, by the way, is manager of just about every type of athletics that we have on the Marshall campus. That is, if he isn't manager now, he has been sometime in the immediate past. As I understand it, he now has trained a few other lads to take over his work and has retired from the active managership of a few sports. I suppose managing athletic teams gets monotonous eventually just like everything else—at least that's the conclusion we are drawing.

At present Hicks has another fellow, "Stonewall" Jackson by name, taking care of the balls and bats and what goes with them for the baseball team. Quite a capable lad, too, so they say. Then next fall a fellow by the name of Caldwell, the President's brother, will take over the active managership of Dandelet's Thundering Herd football team. It looks as though Hicks has become famous enough to retire.

But regardless of that, Brother Hicks has done a noble job of quite a few things and will be remembered for some time to come in the old gym and around the athletic field even if he doesn't work so much in the future. Then he's a pretty good writer, too; if you don't believe it, just read a little of his sport dope.

—THE EDITOR.



"PETE" WILSON

Marshall will miss Pete Wilson next fall when football gets under way. A steady player, Pete was a four-year letterman in the terminal position and has had few equals at Marshall in that position. He has been named on the all-opponent teams of several schools that Marshall played. No Marshallite will soon forget the spectacular long pass he caught for a touchdown in the Wesleyan game on Thanksgiving. Wilson graduates in June and his teammates gave him the highest honor that they had to bestow by electing him honorary captain of the 1931 Thundering Herd.

—HICKS.

Tom Stark graduates this June with the highest football honors ever won by a Marshall player. Playing fullback he has brought fame to himself and to Marshall by his punting, passing, and scoring ability. In 1928 he was the sixth leading high scorer of the East, the next year was captain of the team, and last year was everything from star player to coach and big brother to every man on the squad. That his football ability is not underestimated or his leadership qualities overlooked is testified by his being named assistant football coach at Marshall for 1931.

—HICKS.

TOM STARK

After playing two years as a candidate for tackle, "Bub" broke in as a regular on the 1930 Big Green and played a very sensational brand of ball. He was continuously making wagon drives in the line for those backfield men and on the defense it was just the same as hitting a brick wall for the slogan appeared to be "They shall not pass." Coach Dandelet is expecting big things from "Bub" next year.

—HICKS.

ELMER PATTON

"SAMMY" McEWEN

For the past two seasons Sammy has acted as quarterback for the varsity eleven and has always given a good account of himself. He is a smart, fast, and level-headed quarterback and is known by opponents to be a dangerous man with those passes. All one has to do is remember Wittenberg—a long pass from McEwen to McCoy for a 6-0 victory.

—HICKS.

JOE BINNS

Although Joe was not a regular this year, he was a valuable man to the team, often relieving a backfield man and rendering a good account of himself. Joe was awarded his letter "M" and is expected to be of much value to Coach Dandelet in his last season of football here next fall.

—HICKS.

Raymond McCoy, while the smallest man on the squad, was one of the most dependable backs Coach Maulbetsch possessed and saw regular duty throughout the season. Mac was as much at home when calling signals as he was when running the ball, and many times during the season was called upon to punt or pass, being equally skillful at either. Next fall will find the flashy little halfback playing his last for Marshall—and his best. That is one thing about Mac—he always gives his best and his best is usually good enough.

—HICKS.

RAYMOND McCOY

CURTIS HAMILTON

Ralph was playing his third year of football for the Big Green this season at a tackle position, and a very classy brand of ball he played too. He will always be remembered for his work against Penn State this year. Officials, coaches, and spectators gave him credit for playing the best game of anyone on the field that day.

—HICKS.

RALPH HUMPHRIES

After playing four years at end in high school, Curtis was converted into a center through the earnest efforts of Coach Maulbetsch. At center Ben proved to be one of the strongest points in Marshall's line. He will be back with us next season and with the advantage of one season's experience should be a hard man to keep off the eleven of 1931.

—HICKS.

CLYDE ALFORD

"Red," a guard on the football team for the past two seasons, gave a very good account of himself in every game that he was in. Besides holding up his position in the line "Red" was the life of the squad always piping up with some of his famous witicisms.

—HICKS.

Clyde was used in a dual role this season. Besides playing regular fullback and acting captain for the "B" team, he played the part of reserve fullback for the varsity.

—HICKS.

CARL HALBERT

Ramey Hunter, captain-elect of the Thundering Herd football team, is expected to enjoy his greatest season on the gridiron next fall. Hunter was handicapped throughout the last football season with an injured knee and a weak ankle, which was broken in the first game of the season. Such was his ability, however, that he was named on almost every all-conference eleven. He is a letterman in four major sports.

—HICKS.

"RAMEY" HUNTER

MARVIN LAIRD

Marvin Laird played quite a bit of end on the gridiron last fall and should make captain-elect Hunter a good running mate next season when the Green and White go forth for another years work. Laird played in every game except the Wesleyan fracas on Thanksgiving Day which he was kept out of by an injured shoulder. He has won three letters in football as well as awards in basketball and baseball.

—HICKS.

JOHN MILLER

Miller, a sophomore, acted the role of relief tackle the past season and saw action in every game of the schedule. Miller's work was of a very high calibre, and he is expected to make a strong bid for a tackle position on the 1931 edition of the Thundering Herd.

—HICKS.

Wooley created quite a sensation in the latter part of the season playing a guard position on offense and backing up the line on defense. Marvin was known for his versatility in playing guard, center and tackle.

Wooley was selected by several scribes as a member of the all conference team, and was heralded as one of Marshall's most promising Freshman athletes.

—HICKS.

MARVIN WOOLEY

STUBBY HOWELL

Only a Freshman, yet Fogg played the fullback position with ease and will always be remembered for his kicking. He can touch a ball with his toe and deposit it on the ground at an intervening distance of about seventy yards. Bob will be expected to make a strong bid for the Tommy Stark position in 1931.

—HICKS.

ROBERT FOGG

"Stubby" is a backfield man who caused much worry because he just wouldn't wear a headgear; yet he slipped through that line for many and consistent gains during the year and always came through when we needed a few yards. I believe the reason there was no headgear was so that his hair arranger, Vaseline or otherwise, could assist him in sliding through the line.

—HICKS.

PAUL GASKILL

Gaskill filled up a position in the line very nicely, playing guard part time and center at other times. Paul is a very sweet looking man in the eyes of any football coach and as nice a player as he looks.

—HICKS.

Rardin, a reserve end on the 1930 team, as a Freshman saw a lot of action and was awarded his letter, Rardin looks like a sure find to fill one of the end positions for next season and will be in there fighting for a position on the 1931 machine.

—HICKS.

DAN RARDIN

"Ram," the big tackle who sure knows how to open the opponents line and use those ham like hands of his, was always in every play and was always plugging. As a result of this fact every opposing tackle always made mention of the beating he took from the "big boy."

—HICKS.

JOHN ROEBUCK

"RAM" ROGERS

The heaviest man on the Marshall squad last fall won his second varsity letter. Although he was not a regular, he played in many games and always gave a creditable performance.

—HICKS.

"PETE" WOODRUM

Woodrum, a backfield man of distinction playing his second year for Marshall, will always be remembered for his notable runs in the Wesleyan game on Thanksgiving day when he caused "Cebe" Ross, Wesleyan mentor, to almost have a nervous breakdown because of his spectacular carrying of the ball into the shadow of Wesleyan's goal on numerous occasions.

—HICKS.

"Brad" was the most deadly tackle on the varsity during the last season, and will always be remembered for his ability to diagnose the play of opponents before the man could secure the ball. Due to this intuition he was a very valuable defensive man.

—HICKS.

WAYNE BRADSHAW

Editors note: We were not able to secure pictures of a few of the first squad of the football team; but we'll tell you about them anyhow.)

"BEN" BUSH

Bush came to Marshall in the fall of 1927 after playing Freshman football at Marietta in 1926. He has been a member of the Thundering Herd's football squad for the past three seasons, and, between injuries, has seen quite a bit of service. In addition to football, Ben has been active in intramural sports and was a member of the track squad in 1929. So long, Ben, and good luck!

—HICKS.

"TED" SMITH

Smith, playing his second year for Marshall as a backfield man, was very dependable for a few yards when they were needed to pull the game out of the fire. Ted is a hard-plugging, hard-to-stop line plunger.

—HICKS.

"BENNY" FLETCHER

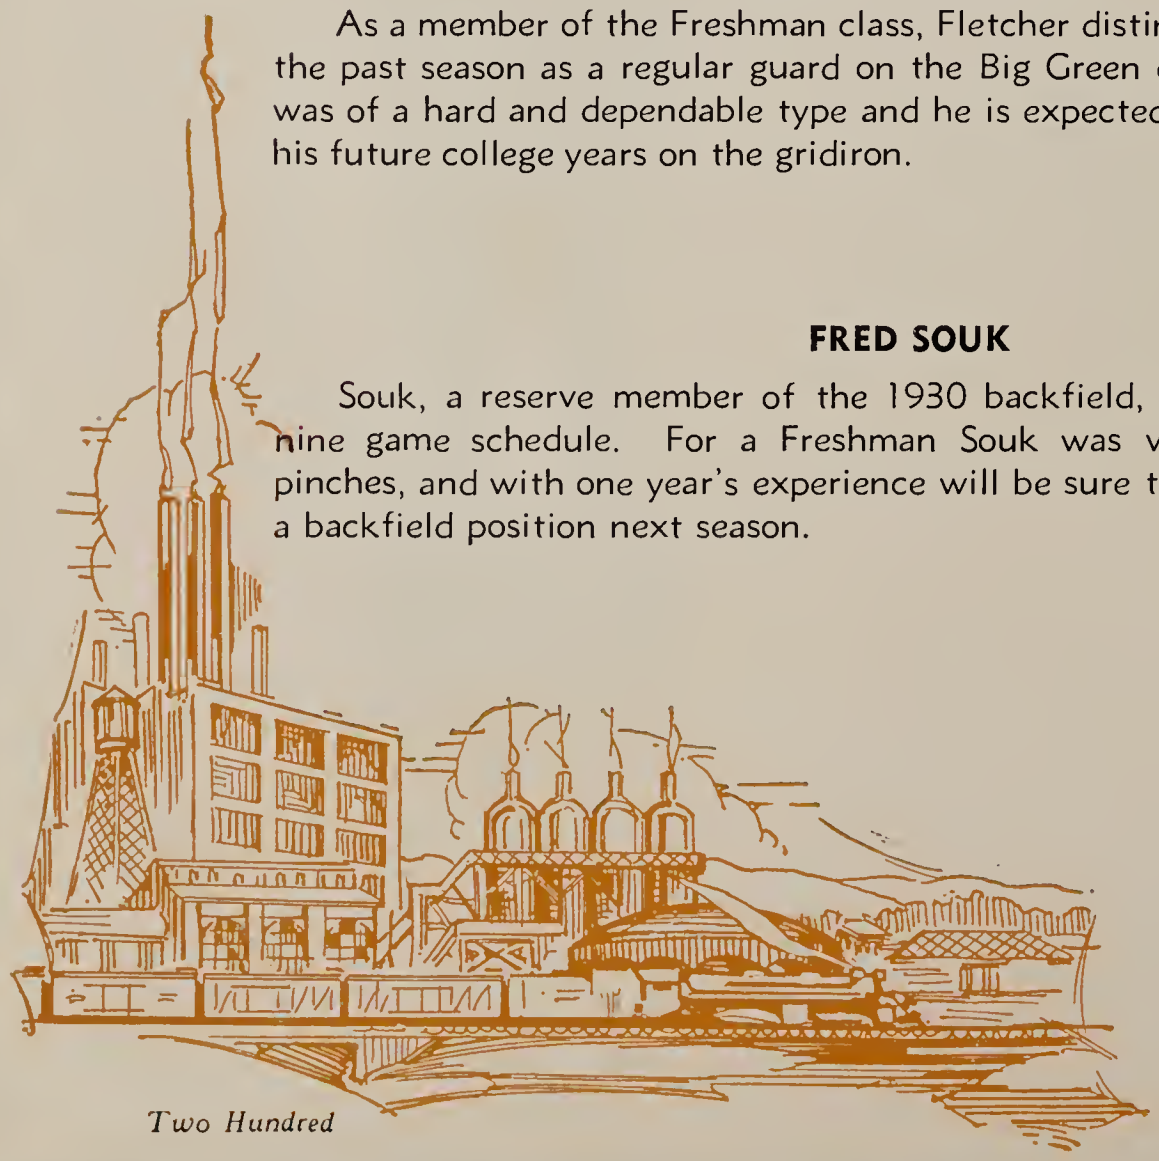
As a member of the Freshman class, Fletcher distinguished himself during the past season as a regular guard on the Big Green eleven. Fletcher's play was of a hard and dependable type and he is expected to be of much help in his future college years on the gridiron.

—HICKS.

FRED SOUK

Souk, a reserve member of the 1930 backfield, played in seven of the nine game schedule. For a Freshman Souk was very dependable in the pinches, and with one year's experience will be sure to make a strong bid for a backfield position next season.

—HICKS.



THE 1930 FOOTBALL RECORD

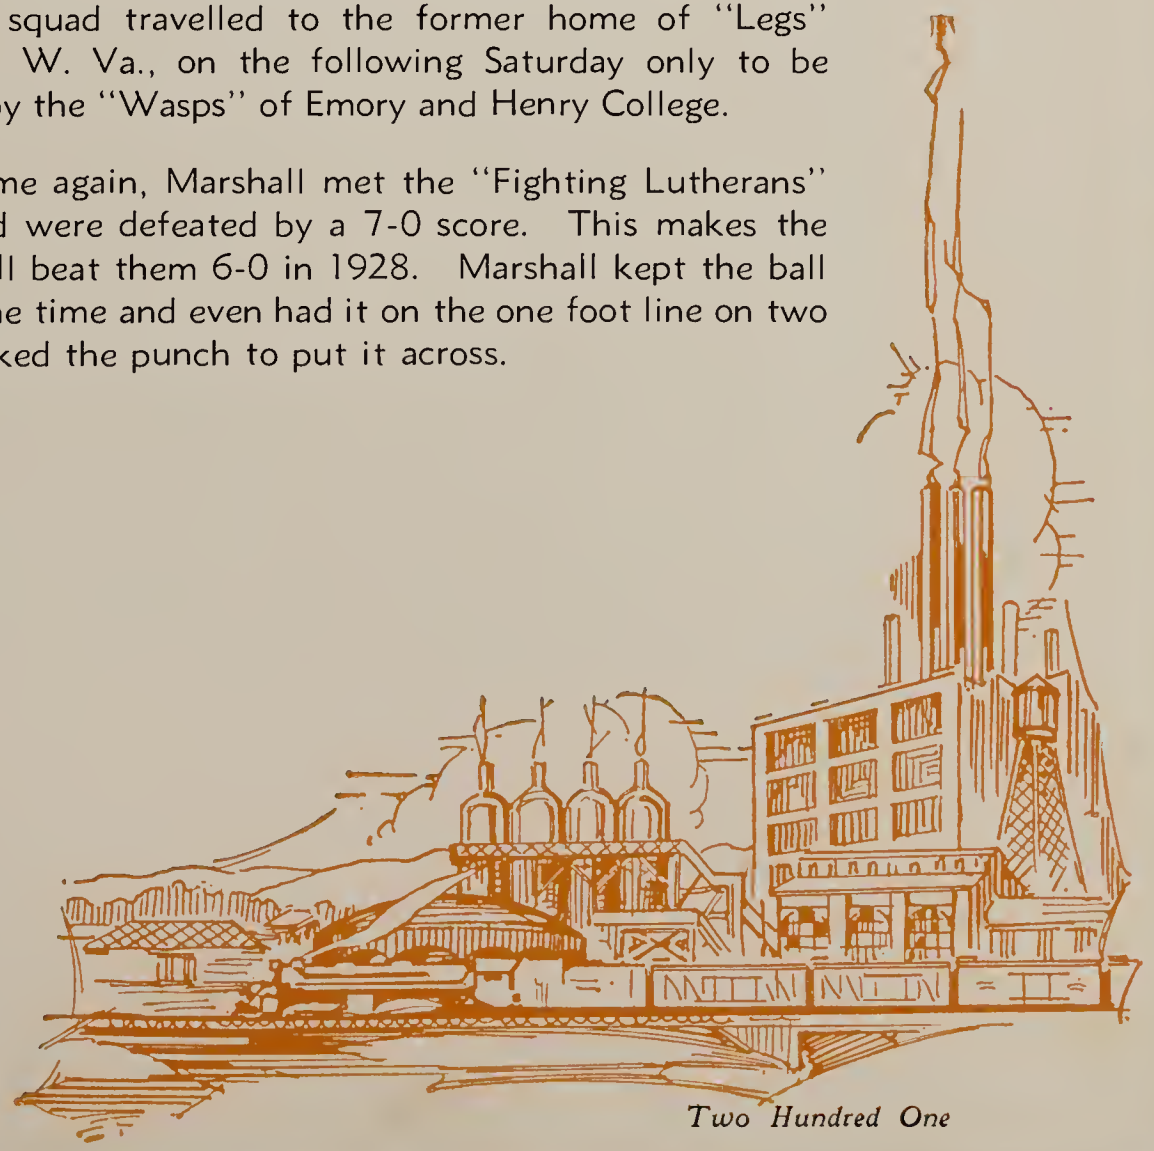
The 1930 football schedule was beyond doubt the stiffest ever to be played by a "Big Green" eleven. Opening the season against the strong Ohio Wesleyan University team at Delaware, Ohio, Marshall was defeated by the score of 26-6. This overwhelming defeat looked bad when one recalls that in 1927 the same school only defeated Marshall by 7-0. Yet one must not forget the fact that in 1927 Wesleyan's team was only mediocre and this year they had one of the best in the history of the institution. In connection with this encounter, Marshall suffered the injury of two of her best players—Hunter and Stark.

On the next Saturday the Herd played its first home game against Morris-Harvey College and trimmed the boys from the Village by a 7-0 score.

The next appearance of the Herd was at State College, Pennsylvania, where Marshall went up against the best team that Penn State has turned out for many years. It is best not to remember too much about that game—the score was 65-0 and Marshall did not win.

The next Saturday saw another home game with Bethany College as the opposition. It was in this game that the Big Green seemed to get started for the first time and spectators at Fairfield Stadium saw the Bethany Bisons suffer a 37-0 defeat at the hands of a remodeled Thundering Herd. With high spirits the Marshall squad travelled to the former home of "Legs" Hawley, namely Bluefield, W. Va., on the following Saturday only to be stung to the tune of 13-0 by the "Wasps" of Emory and Henry College.

Next week-end, at home again, Marshall met the "Fighting Lutherans" of Wittenburg College and were defeated by a 7-0 score. This makes the two teams even as Marshall beat them 6-0 in 1928. Marshall kept the ball in their territory most of the time and even had it on the one foot line on two different ocassions but lacked the punch to put it across.



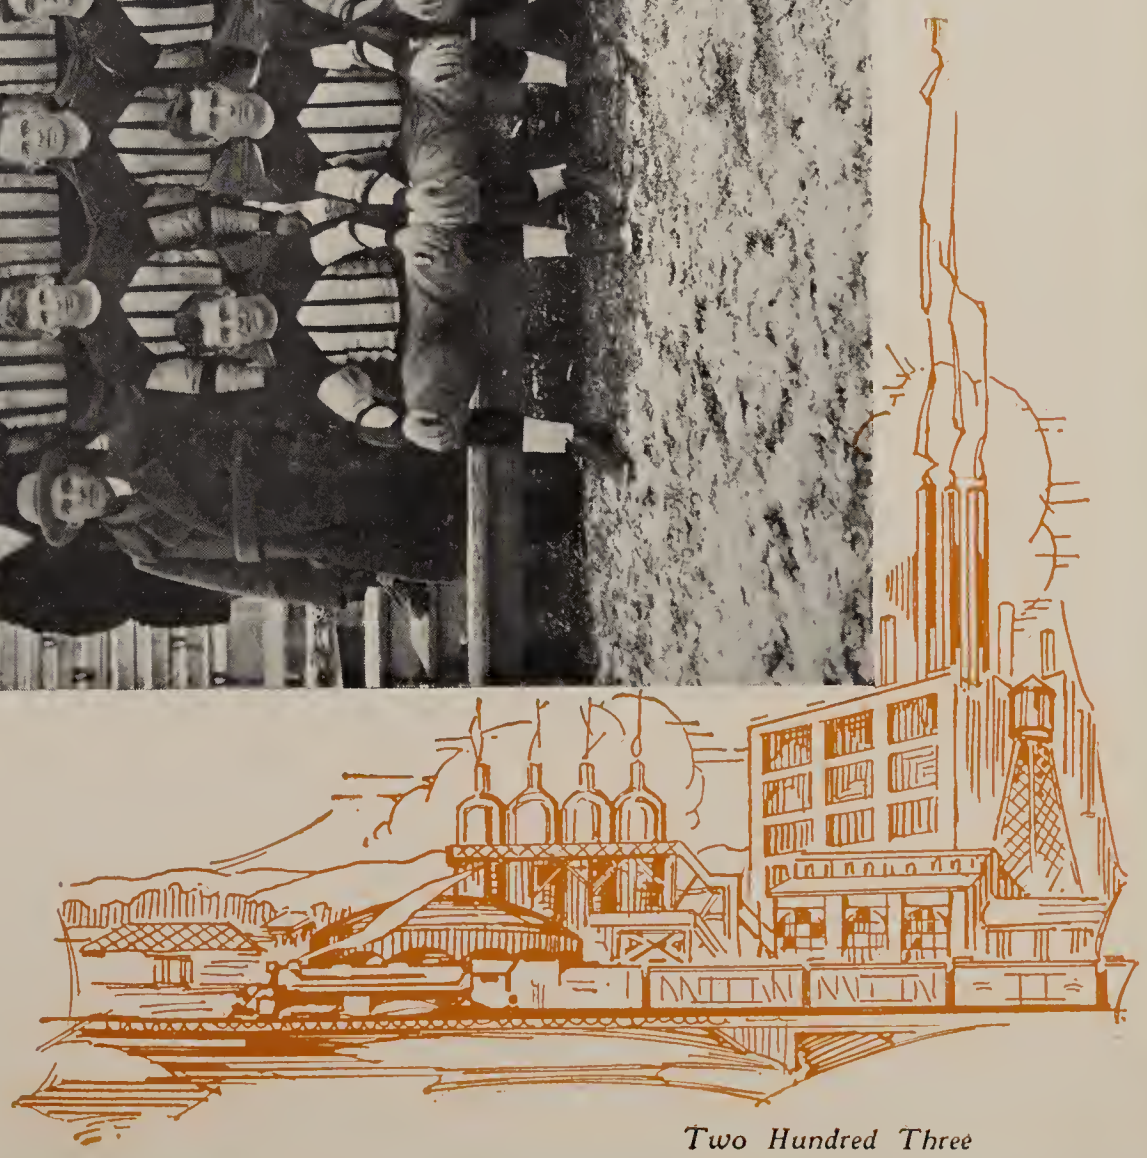
After this set-back Marshall took the road again traveling to Fairmont to play a night game with the "Teachers" of Fairmont State Normal. Everyone on the team seemed to like night football for the score was 43-0 with Marshall having the figures in two columns. (Moral: Marshall should install lights at Fairfield Stadium and play at night all the time in the future.) Success was only of short duration, however, as Louisville trimmed the Herd on the following Saturday by 13-12 after they had been held 12-7 until the last twenty seconds of play. Then with a little pass made complete and a slight effort at running with the ball the score was altered to make a 13-12 victory for the boys from Louisville.

The final, biggest, and most interesting contest of the season, as per usual, was played on Thanksgiving Day at Fairfield Stadium with West Virginia Wesleyan. Playing in Zero weather and on a snow-covered field, the Herd held "Gyp" Battles, the famous, and ten other Wesleyanites to a 6-6 tie under the audience of Governor Conley and several other state officials.

This gave the Herd a season's record of five defeats, one tie and three victories. Considering injuries, the limited amount of material, and the "breaks"—for breaks cannot be eliminated in an athletic contest,—Marshall undoubtedly has no cause to feel humiliated over this record.

—HICKS.

THE THUNDERING HERD



THE 1930-31 BASKETBALL SEASON

The 1930-31 basketball season was a mediocre success from the standpoint of victories and defeats as the "Thundering Herd" won nine and lost eight contests.

Opening the season against the strong University of Kentucky team, the boys took an expected defeat of 42-26 although they kept the Kentuckians hard at work until the final whistle. The next game was with the old Marshall grads and this time the Varsity was more successful, turning in a 30-24 victory. Morris-Harvey was next on the program and they were defeated by a 42-29 score.

The team then took the road for a few games and did not seem to be nearly so successful traveling. The first game with West Virginia University was lost by a 36-22 score. From Morgantown the boys went to Fairmont State Teachers College only to be defeated by the "Teachers" 46-35. To Buckhannon the boys next went only to be downed by the "Bobcats" by a 37-30 score. On the way back to Huntington feeling kind of blue and out of spirits, the boys stopped over at Salem for a little contest and to a certain degree vindicated their honor by defeating Salem 54-28.

Coming back home again and starting out on a new floor—that is new for Marshall—at Vanity Fair, Coach Stuart's combination upset all predictions and expectations by defeating the highly touted New River State lads by a decisive score 45-32. The next appearance of the "Herd" was at Athens, Ohio, where the strong Ohio University five was met. Marshall again was the underdog and this time lived up to what the public was expecting but not until a few unexpected things had taken place. Ohio University had a difficult time in winning by a 42-38 score.

MARSHALL

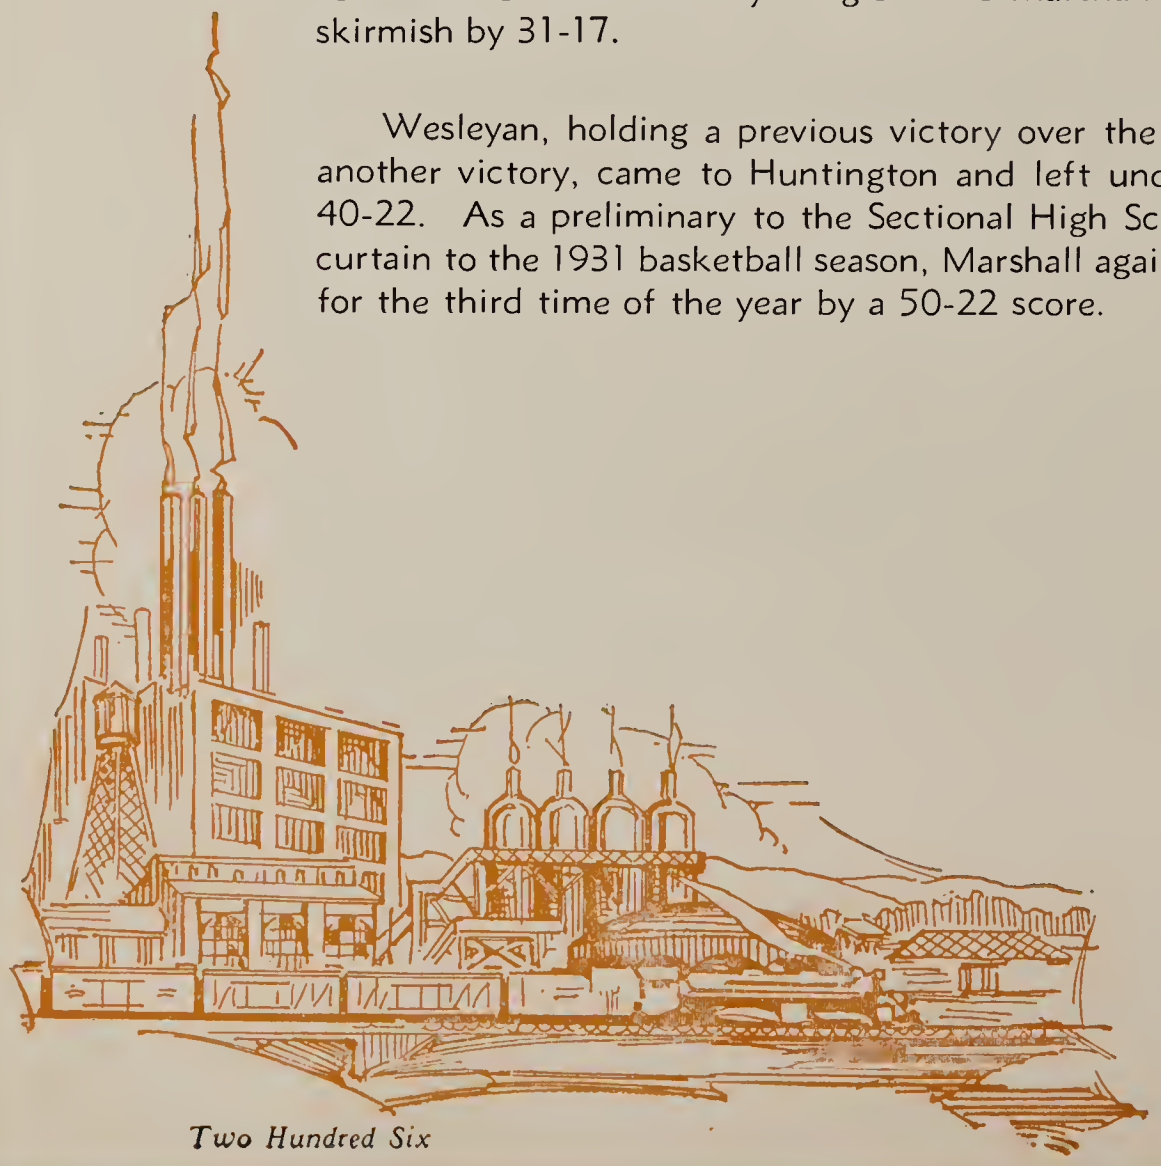
Just to prove that one team can't always win, Marshall next took on the Fairmont teachers on the Vanity Fair floor. You will recall that Fairmont had won an earlier contest at Fairmont. When the final whistle blew this time Marshall was leading by 47-31. Perhaps the most spectacular game of the season was played on the Marshall floor with the Wittenberg Lutherans furnishing the opposition. Wittenberg, incidentally, was undefeated and expecting an easy time at Marshall; they were disappointed and had to release their best to win by 33-31.

On the road again Marshall allowed New River State to trim them by a 47-35 score at Montgomery. Then to Bluefield to meet Emory and Henry who had won the fall football classic by 13-0—Marshall beat the "Wasps" 35-28.

The little Salem combination with a completely revamped team next came to the Vanity Fair floor and, to the surprise of everyone including themselves, handed the Stuartmen a 43-35 defeat. Going to Barboursville to meet the Morris-Harvey "Eagles" the Marshall squad easily won another skirmish by 31-17.

Wesleyan, holding a previous victory over the "Herd" and confident of another victory, came to Huntington and left under the stinging defeat of 40-22. As a preliminary to the Sectional High School tournament and as a curtain to the 1931 basketball season, Marshall again defeated Morris- Harvey for the third time of the year by a 50-22 score.



THE BASEBALL SCHEDULE

The 1931 baseball season, as yet very young, finds Marshall way out in front having won four out of the five games played. Opening the season against Ohio University, the boys were defeated by 5-3. Morris-Harvey was next met at Barboursville and defeated by 13-3. On the following afternoon Marshall again defeated Morris-Harvey at Huntington by 10-4. The next game was with Marietta College on the Marshall sandlot; Marshall had little difficulty in turning in a 10-2 victory. For the third time Morris-Harvey was met and defeated; this time by 10-2. And so the season rolls on.

The remainder of the schedule is:

(Editors note: Inasmuch as brother Hicks is rather busy and this sport stuff is way past due at the printer's, I'm going to take a crack at writing some sport dope myself. I'm not promising that anything will be authentic but it, at least, will fill space.)

The Marshall College baseball Teams have succeeded in winning the West Virginia Collegiate Championship for the past few years. Working under the guidance of Coach John D. Stuart, owner and manager of The Huntington Boosters of the Middle Atlantic League, Marshall has produced some baseball players of exceptional ability most notable of whom probably is Johnny Watson who was put under contract upon graduation by the Detroit Tigers. Many other former Marshall students are now playing in minor leagues in West Virginia and nearby states.

At the beginning of the current baseball season things looked plenty dark for Marshall due to the seeming lack of anyone who could successfully twirl that ball to the extent of preventing scores being chalked up by the opposition. About the only one who looked good enough "to write home about" was Fisher, a twirler who has been tossing for Marshall for two years and who came into prominence a couple of years ago when Notre Dame was licked in a pitchers duel in which brother Fisher figured prominently. And, as some people at least know, one pitcher is not enough to make a successful baseball club—it is practically impossible for one man to pitch two or three games in successive days. "Ironman" Stuart is about the only one that has been known to do that to any great extent and he's not the man he used to was. But—Stuart has the habit or ability of making players, especially pitchers, when there is a deficiency; so, things were not so bad. Those who have seen "Lefty" Belcher twirl in the few games that have been played to date vouch for that previous remark.

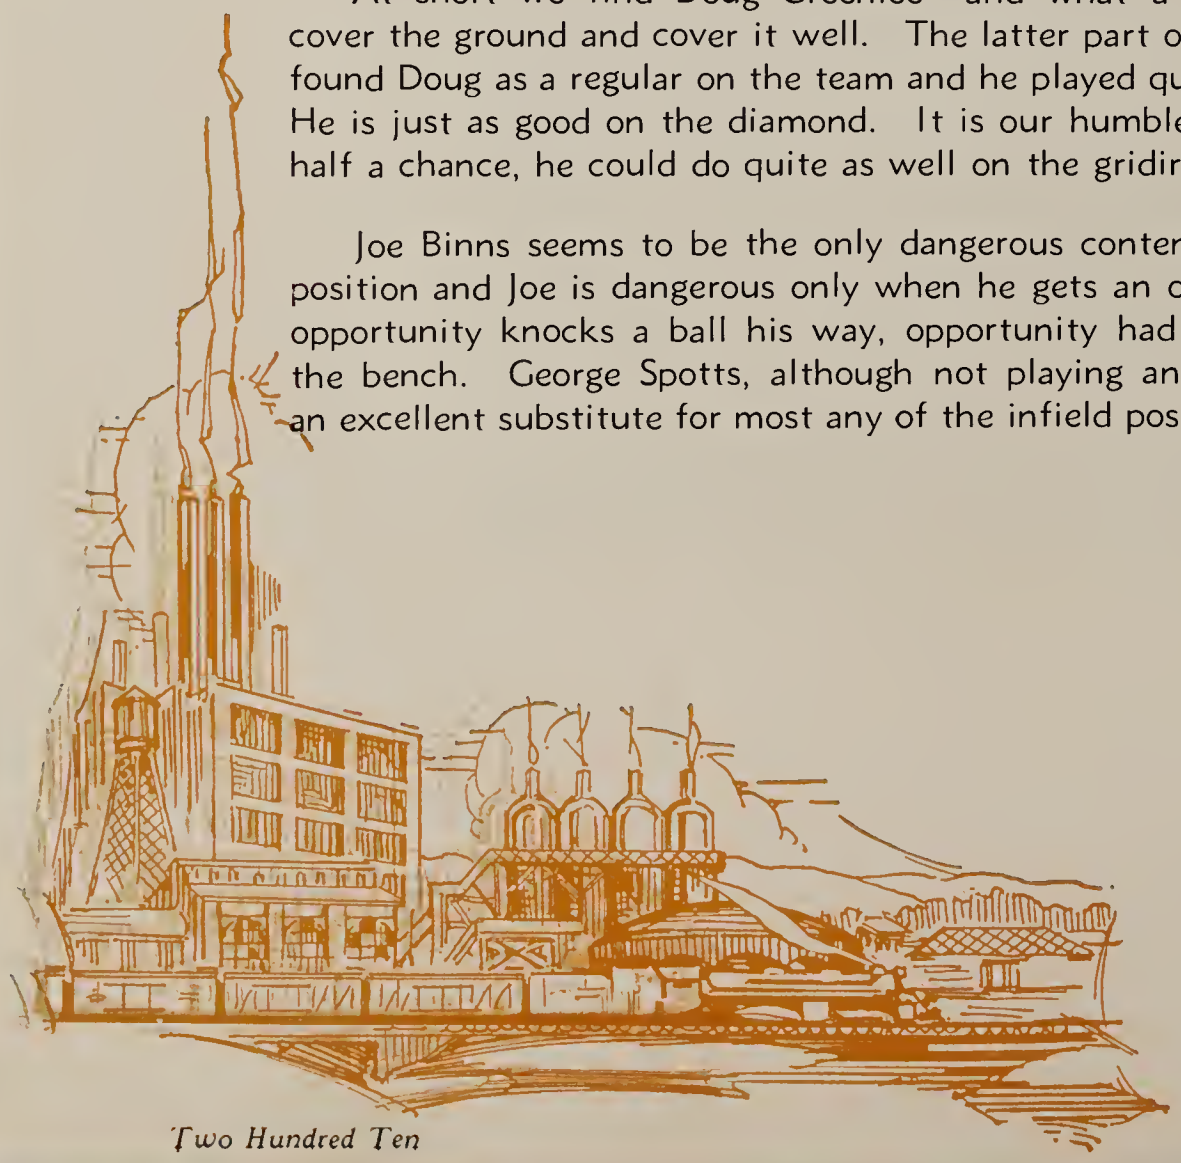
In the catching ranks "Jinks" Kinsey McEwen's husband, Sammy by name, seems to be figuring most prominently. Sammy can hold on to that ball, usually, and does not find it at all difficult to hit a few successfully once in a while. Mr. Priode, of Williamson fame, seems to be Sammy's most persistent rival for the backstop position.

Now when it comes to playing around those bases we have quite a nice little line-up. On first we find Marvin Laird or Ramey Hunter, depending on the day. Either of these two gentlemen (some say) is quite capable of holding down the sack, and both usually are found on the diamond in some capacity.

"Ducky" Carter seems to be the chief contender for the second bag position. "Ducky" is quite capable of stopping the ball, and holding on to it, when it comes his way, and can he sock that ball with a bat? You don't have to have the answer, just use your imagination.

At short we find Doug Greenlee—and what a find. Doug sure can cover the ground and cover it well. The latter part of the basketball season found Doug as a regular on the team and he played quite a sensational game. He is just as good on the diamond. It is our humble opinion that, if given half a chance, he could do quite as well on the gridiron as a ball toter.

Joe Binns seems to be the only dangerous contender for the third base position and Joe is dangerous only when he gets an oppportunity, but when opportunity knocks a ball his way, opportunity had better take a seat on the bench. George Spotts, although not playing any position regularly, is an excellent substitute for most any of the infield positions.



The Marshall outfield is probably the strongest that she has ever had in the field. Kyle Tackett makes errors in fielding only on rare occasions and is one of the most reliable batters that Coach Stuart has. John McKown, although only a newcomer to the fold, is playing a sensational brand of ball both in the field and at the bat. One only need mention the name of McNeer to complete an outfield that Johnny Stuart probably has dreamed about for the past few years. With such a lineup Marshall should go places and do things in college baseball this season.

TENNIS

The season for 1931 had a bad start due to the great amount of inclement weather and the courts not being available, but when sixteen aspirants reported to Coach Carl G. Campbell for the first practices, it was shown that tennis had its followers at Marshall. Four lettermen of 1928 and 1930 reported for practice: Kendall, Wilkinson, Holton, and Hamlin.

Lowe, Arnett, and Schmauch, lettermen of 1930, were lost to the 1931 team—the first two having graduated in 1930 and the latter having entered another school. Byron Wilkinson, captain for 1930, and George Vieweg, a newcomer to Marshall, were entered in the Collegiate matches at White Sulphur Springs in the fall and were defeated in the semi-finals by the champions.

This year's schedule calls for two matches with Marietta College, two with Morris-Harvey College, two with the Portsmouth Tennis Club, and one with the Charleston Tennis Club. The squad personnel consists of Byron Wilkinson, George Vieweg, Jack Kendall, Hume Owens, Raymond Kem, Douglas Holton, Urban Hamlin, Ned Bryan, Howard Walls, Richard Garner, Stanford Brown, Coach Campbell, Manager Starkey, and assistant manager Estler.

INTRAMURAL ATHLETICS

Under the capable leadership of Prof. Otto Gullickson, intramural athletics were really inaugurated this year at Marshall College. Previously there have been a few attempts to start intramural competition, but it was not until Mr. Gullickson took charge that there was a regular program carried through throughout the year. Seemingly a leader who had a thorough knowledge of all sports and the ability to arouse interest and see things through was all that was needed. Prof. Gullickson seems to possess these admirable qualities in abundance. And, so, we have a well rounded program of intramural activities running throughout the year.

There are at Marshall approximately 625 men students. Out of this number over 450 have participated in some phase of the intramural athletic program. There have been ten organized teams competing in the various events: Green and White, Bisons, Alpha Theta Chi, Kappa Alpha, Alpha Kappa Pi, Phi Kappa Nu, Phi Tau Alpha, Y. M. C. A., Zeke's Zig Zaggers, and the Herd. The various events were volleyball, basketball, handball singles and doubles, wrestling, track and field meet, swimming, horse shoe singles and doubles, tennis singles and doubles, baseball and the Pentathlon. The Pentathlon of five events was held both in the fall and spring with the following events: high jump, rope climb, three laps around the track, bar vault, and swim of three lengths of the pool.

DR. THOMAS C. DONNELLY

In order to relieve my own conscience and make Marshall students as a whole a little more enlightened on what Marshall graduates are doing and have done, I am writing this little tribute, inadequate though it may be, to one of Marshall's most prominent and successful alumni—Thomas C. Donnelly by name—who during the time since he graduated from Marshall in the spring of 1926 has obtained his Ph. D. degree from New York University and has taught and is still teaching in the Department of Government of Washington Square College of New York University.

Dr. Donnelly, along with Wallace Sayre, another Marshall graduate and a classmate of Donnelly's, obtained fellowships in N. Y. U. in the fall of 1927 and since then have obtained their Masters and Doctors degrees in Political Science and History respectively. Before graduating from Marshall they both were prominent in campus activities—Donnelly having edited the Parthenon and Sayre the Mirabilia. Donnelly also was student assistant in Political Science two years before he graduated from Marshall.

Since obtaining his Doctors degree Mr. Donnelly is the co-author of a book entitled The Campaign of 1928 in which he discusses the political campaign of the presidential election of that year. The book is authentic inasmuch as Mr. Donnelly attended both of the national conventions himself and was a close follower of the entire campaign. Doctor Donnelly will beyond doubt be one of the most outstanding authorities on government in the United States in a few years.
